

I'm no stranger to competition. I just want a fair race.

Jim Adams
Owner, Falls Road Running Store
Baltimore, Maryland

Jim Adams knows what it's like to compete—he sells shoes to elite runners who race nationwide. And from his small store in Baltimore, Jim competes with retailers from around the country. On the road, his customers all run in the same race by the same rules. But Jim's competitors get to play by different rules thanks to America's outdated sales tax policy. Letting online retailers get a step ahead of Jim is not very sportsmanlike.

Congress, it's time to act.

Pass the Marketplace Fairness Act and level the playing field between online and brick-and-mortar retailers.
